QUESTION: In your opinion is the story of Lazarus and the rich man recorded in Luke a parable or a true incident?

ANSWER: The story of the rich man and Lazarus is one of the many stories Jesus used about the future life. He made bold to appeal to the hope of heaven and the fear of hell.

We are not sure if it is a 'parable,' or a true incident. But if it is a parable, a parable is used to teach specific truths, and certain truths emerge from this story.

For one thing, it teaches clearly that there are two places of abode in the life beyond, heaven and hell. It teaches that lost souls are 'in some sort of anguish.' It reveals that there is an impassable gulf between Paradise and hell, implying that death terminates our opportunity to be saved.

One of the most powerful and effective stimulants to good, and deterrents to evil, is a profound belief in the future life. And nothing was more clearly taught by our Lord than that life extends beyond this one.
